Connolly Ranked Among the ‘Best Places to Work in Connecticut’

March 30, 2010

Atlanta, GA – A statewide competition has ranked Connolly among the “Best Places to Work in Connecticut.” According to officials from the annual “Best Places” statewide competition, which is produced by Hartford Business Journal and the Best Companies Group, Connolly emerged toward the top of the group of competitors, an especially notable ranking as this is Connolly’s first year participating.

“We rank our competitors through a comprehensive, comparative analysis of employer questionnaire scores, employee survey scores and open-ended responses,” said Program Coordinator, Best Companies Group, Jackie Miller. “Connolly is obviously a very positive place to work.”

The architects of Connolly’s upbeat and energetic culture are CEO Larry Connolly and his sister Libby Connolly Alexander. The company was started by their father James Connolly, a retired President of Gimbels department store, 31 years ago. Connolly’s popularity with its employees is reflected in its voluntary turnover rate which stands at a mere 3%.

“Our culture reflects our strong trust in our people and in the values we have developed over time,” says Larry Connolly. “We have nine non-negotiable values our employees are expected to adhere to: Customer Service Focused; Passionate; Boundaryless; Integrity; Results Oriented; Team Player; Self Motivated; Reliable and Professional.

“We are so pleased to win this ranking,” says Libby Alexander, “We work very hard at cultivating and retaining the talented individuals that we have attracted. We are a niche business so we tend to promote from within which provides folks with a career path. We have a flat organizational structure which encourages open communication.”
